Research Interest

During my academic career, I devoted my attention to diversity and migration research area. I am interested in cultural diversity and its implications on migration processes with cities as the main actors. Urban Migration Governance in the European context is my primary research topic with a particular focus on the Chinese ethnic community. The collective actions taken by diverse local actors, their horizontal and vertical relationships at the local level within the EU are my major research interests, mainly within the framework of Interculturalism.
